When the doctor arrived at the artist's home and saw that his patient was a dog, he was raged, but immediately he thought of a plan to get even. Hiding his anger, he said calmly, "I'm afraid this is a very difficult case. I'll have to go back to study the case more carefully. I'll call you when I find out exactly what's wrong with your dog." Then he left. About the same time the following night, Mr. DePicter was awakened by a phone call. It was the throat specialist and he asked Mr. DePicter to go immediately to his house. Mr. DePicter said, "But, Doctor, it's past twelve. I have an appointment to paint the portrait of a very important person. Can't you wait until tomorrow afternoon?"
