Father's Day is around the corner. Kevin was thinking about what gift he could give his father this year. He wandered in front of the store and groped for his pocket. There was only some money in it. The things in the store are too expensive, and he didn't have enough money. Finally, he bought some materials and a card. He decided to make a photo album by himself and collected photos of him and his father into the album. And he would write some words he wanted to say to his father on the card. He hoped his father would like his gift.
