When I was a child I had many toys, but the thing I remember best is three yards of gold-colored silk. This was my favorite plaything. My father had brought the material home one day, along with many other things, after one of his trips abroad. When he asked me what I wanted, I chose this piece of silk. Not only was it beautiful to look at, but also it was soft and smooth to touch. The three yards of gold-colored silk and I soon became inseparable. It was my passport into the world of fantasy. With it, I could become any character I had read or heard about by draping and twisting the silk into different costumes.
