My parents are an interesting couple. They don't mean to make fun of each other but what they do is humorous.

When my dad was thirty something, he hit himself on the forehead very hard on something inside the garage. So, my mother rushed him to an emergency room. Because my father cut himself very badly, the doctor had to perform a surgery. Seeing my father suffering, my mother felt weak; the nurse pulled a chair up for her and then went back to dad's side. "I know we're all grown-ups," said the nurse, "but, it's OK to cry sometimes when it hurts."
