

中心：_____

姓名：_____

1100913 大專院校生 英翻中短文翻譯 題目

Greece's prime minister has apologized for failures in tackling the wildfires tearing across the country. Hundreds of firefighters have been battling huge blazes that have forced thousands of people to flee their homes and destroyed dozens of properties. "We may have done what was humanly possible, but in many cases it was not enough," One of the firefighters said. Thick smoke is still pouring off the island of Evia, north-east of Athens, which has been ablaze for a week.