On Sep. 3, 2001, I met a young physician in a medical conference. He seemed to be eager to talk to me. He said he was also a neurologist. He asked whether I participated in a neuro surgery on Jan. 5, 1986. I thought about this for a while and finally recalled that the patient at that time was a gang leader. The young doctor then told me that he was the gangster's son.
