So what exactly does this Catholic priest do? Usually, he gets up very early in the morning. He performs mass and prays, just like any other priest. But his major work is completely unique. To Hindus, the Ganges is a very special river. The vast majority of the Indians aspire to bathe in the Gangs at least once in their life. The reason is that they believe bathing in the Gangs will greatly benefit their souls. To the rich, this is not difficult to accomplish. But to many of the desperately poor, they must make the journey on foot. The journey is quite long. Some of them were too weary to reach the river and just stopped in Calcutta. Whenever this priest finds these people, he would help these people by carrying them there on his back.
