What does outer space look like? For thousand of years, people never stop imaging the answer to the question. People never stop asking if there is any living thing in outer space, too. One of the famous movies, Star Wars, was made from such imagination. “A long time ago in a galaxy far, far away...” If you know this sentence very well, you must be a big fan of the Star War series. The director, George Lucas, combined cultures from the East and West to create the world of Star Wars. The first one of the Star Wars series was released in 1977. After it became famous, the series were made into different forms, including books, TV series, comic books, video games, and so on. There is even a Star Wars museum in Chicago. However, George Lucas is no longer the owner of the movie. He sold his company to the Walt Disney Company in 2012. And Disney has continued to make Star Wars movies in recent years and had the series be long living!
