I was speechless at the moment. My vanity made me unwilling to give up the opportunity to pursue fame and wealth. Thirty years have passed since then, but the deep shame of being unable to dedicate my life to serving prisoners has never left me. Each time I have success in my career, it only puts my conscience ill. Here I would like to take the opportunity to thank this friend of mine for making me feel I haven't lived my life in vain. At least, now I can tell my daughter proudly, "Your dad once did a good thing."
