At any given time, a patient might ask for a drink of water, so the volunteers would constantly supply water for them. Sometimes we would mix the powdered milk for them as well. One sick man there was particularly bothersome. At the very beginning, he thought I shouldn't have given him cold milk, so I had to go look for hot water. I went to the kitchen. The kitchen worker I met cursed me out in Hindi. I didn't understand why she was so angry and what I had done wrong.
