The last person who was literate died. He might be the most knowledgeable person. He knew humans had high civilization before, but it vanished. He knew humans killed one another and had hatred and mistrust before, but they all vanished. He lived in a high mountain of Argentina. Before he died, he tried his best to teach his grandchildren to write; however, he didn't succeed. He remembered some words that his ancestors handed down, and he tried to carve one of them on the stone wall in a cave. It was "You can't go to Heaven unless you become a child."
