In the wilderness, two people argued about the cooked wild geese are more delicious or the roasted wild geese are more delicious. Their faces were flushed with anger. They finally decided to ask someone to judge that. The person suggested that they dealt with the wild goose by cooking half and roasting half. They left with satisfaction. However, when they returned to the wilderness again, the group of wild geese had disappeared without traces. They waited for the wild geese for the whole spring, but they did not see the wild geese anymore. They still didn't know which are more delicious, the cooked wild geese or the roasted wild geese.
