Why was Professor Chen troubled? The answer was that as a professor, he should always pass on knowledge to all the people in the world. If he started a company, he had to keep a few skills and not tell others. He believed that if everyone was like this, human science would not make any significant progress. So he told the visitor again and again that although he liked to make money, he hoped that people would know his thoughts. He believed that as long as more people worked hard according to his ideas, there would be better methods.
