Two years ago, a small town in Changhua (彰化) started to grow healthy rice which was not grown by farmers but by students from a small elementary school of only about fifty people. The idea of growing rice came from the school teachers who wanted the students to get closer to the land and learn to help each other when doing the rice farming. What's better, the school made money from selling the rice and giving farming classes to the public. With the money, the school could help students who wished to go to foreign countries some day.
